THE PROMISE

All students in Butte County will be prepared for success beyond high school in order to become productive members of the workforce and engaged citizens. Success is defined as earning a certificate in a career education field, completing an associate’s degree, achieving a bachelor’s degree and/or obtaining an advanced degree.

BACKGROUND

The Butte County education community has a responsibility to prepare its young people for successful careers and productive lives. In today’s world, our regional economy is tied to the global economy. To prepare our young people for success, we must offer nothing less than an exceptional education. Each student deserves a realistic opportunity to earn certification and/or a degree. The Butte County Promise ensures that all students meeting the enrollment criteria for Butte College and California State University, Chico will be provided this opportunity. The future of our county depends on our effectiveness in developing a well-educated workforce to sustain the economy of our cities and the surrounding region.

The Butte County Promise is the culmination of over a year of planning and collaboration between representatives from every district in the county led by the following partners:

- ADVANCE North State
- Butte College
- Butte County Office of Education
- California State University, Chico
- Chico Unified School District
- First Five Butte County

There are two complementary aspects to our partnership. The first is to align our educational programs with the needs of employers. The second is to coordinate the programs, pathways, and processes within the segments of the educational system (Butte County Office of Education and K-12 districts, Butte College, and California State University, Chico).

It is anticipated that this partnership will expand, over time, to include the Glenn County Office of Education and the school districts in Glenn County.
